A long time ago, tigers had thick yellow fur. All the animals in the jungle feared them. One day, a tiger came to a farm and saw a buffalo helping a farmer plough his land. The tiger looked at the buffalo and wondered, "Why is the large buffalo bullied by such a tiny man?"

When the farmer went for lunch, the tiger confronted the buffalo, "You are a strong animal. Why do you allow yourself to be bullied by that farmer?"

The buffalo answered, "Although I'm stronger than the farmer, I do not have his intelligence. That is why I do not resist him."

The tiger growled in anger and said, "Intelligence? What is that? Does he have more of it than me, the King of the Jungle?"

The buffalo cowered a little and stammered, "Well.....I.....I..... can't explain what intelligence is. Why don't you ask the farmer?"

When the farmer came back, the furious tiger let out a loud roar and demanded to see the farmer's intelligence. The farmer trembled with fear and replied, "Err.....I left my intelligence at home. Wait here and I'll go get it. First let me tie you to this tree so that you cannot eat my buffalo."

The tiger agreed. The farmer used a strong rope and tied the tiger to a tree trunk. The farmer soon returned with some firewood. The puzzled tiger asked, "What are you doing?"

"Err.....It's getting cold. I am making a fire to keep you warm," lied the farmer. The gullible tiger thought the farmer was being very considerate.

The farmer lit the firewood and a huge fire began to burn! The tiger was badly burnt for it could not break free from the rope. The farmer stood aside and shouted to the tiger, "Hah! Didn't you want to see my intelligence? This is my intelligence! The tiger finally broke free and fled the scene.

From then on, the tiger had black stripes all over its body as a result of the farmer's fire. Since then, tigers have been afraid of fire.
